

CHRISTIAN CHURCH WOMEN GUESTS

MEMBERS OF SECTION ONE OF WOMAN'S UNION ENTERTAIN MEMBERS OF OTHER SECTIONS AT HOME OF MRS. JOHN YOUNG THURSDAY AFTERNOON

The members of Section One of the Woman's Union of the Christian church, delightfully entertained the members of Section Two and Section three Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John W. Young on West Poplar Street. Once every three months a special meeting is held at which one section is hostess to the other section. The spacious home of Mrs. Young was decorated throughout with cut flowers. A program of readings by Miss Nellie Frances Wright; a duet by Mrs. Melvin Coffman and Mrs. Crosby; and a piano solo by Miss Mildred Nicholas, was given. A report of the year's work of the three sections was given. The report showed very satisfactory progress. Following the business session of the meeting, refreshments of mint sherbert, cake and punch were served. About sixty five members attended Thursday's meeting.

MANY MOTOR ACCIDENTS ARE DUE TO CARELESSNESS

With deplorable accidents continuing throughout Indiana, in which automobile owners and passengers are maimed or killed, it would seem that each individual driver in the state would take these lessons straight into his own heart and mind according to a statement given out by the Hoosier State Auto Association, the state-wide organization of auto owners.

"It would seem that the blind corner chance taker has had plenty of horrible examples this spring," the association says. "The papers have recorded many tragedies of the blind road intersection as well as casualties of the railroad grade crossing. Every driver, by pausing to reason just a second or two, will understand that if he rushes through a road intersection where he cannot see around the corner to determine whether another vehicle is approaching is surely flirting with death not only for himself but for beloved members of his family who may be riding with him."

"Does the thoughtless driver actually WANT to commit suicide and in so doing also commit murder by causing the death of innocent victims? is a pertinent query, asked by the auto association, which has been striving for many years to make motoring safer and more enjoyable. The statement continues:

"Thoughtlessness is a poor excuse. It doesn't remedy the situation after the tragedy. The driver of an automobile must be on the alert to ANTICIPATE danger and to be ready to act safely and safely. It doesn't do to depend on the judgment of the other fellow. Over in Illinois is a sign on a dangerous curve which reads: 'Drive Slow, You May Meet a Damn Fool.'"

"Striving to be ready to meet the fool actions of the other fellow with sane actions on your part will be more apt to get you there safely and get you back safely."

"Combine this spirit with a knowledge of the laws of the road and also a willingness to let the other fellow have the right of way occasionally—in short, common decency blended with common courtesy and the so-called common horse sense (which is by no means so common)—and driving will be more pleasant for you and for all others on the roads."

"Remember to cross crossings cautiously by using the old time stop-look-listen formula. Or would you rather attend your own funeral? Remember also, that with high corn, high weeds, high foliage at road intersections, there is quite apt to be another car rushing along the cross roads and—more work for the ambulances and the coroner. Don't say we're trying to take the joy out of touring—we're trying to keep the joy in so that you may live your allotted span."

"Keep the speed mania under control when passing through towns and villages else don't blame the sheriffs and constables of the state for waging a crusade against such practices. The small-town and small village residents have children they prize as highly as you do your own and fast speeding cars are a deadly menace in all such communities. Remember the gasoline Golden Rule: 'Drive always as ye would that others should drive.'"

The auto association is inviting motor car owners all over the state to join it so it may have finances to extend its work everywhere in Indiana. "Thousands of danger signs and direction signs are needed" it is pointed out "and we have no funds for this purpose except as our membership grows. We feel it is the duty of every auto owner to assist us in this way if at all possible, for we are not working for profits—merely working for safety and protection."

FOURTEEN MINERS HURT IN CLINTON MINE ACCIDENT

VICTIMS OF ACCIDENT AT VERMILION COAL COMPANY'S MINE, NEAR CLINTON, REMOVED TO HOSPITAL AT TERRE HAUTE—ENGINEER LOSES CONTROL OF CAGE WHEN HALF WAY DOWN 200-FOOT SHAFT—CAUSE OF TROUBLE WITH LOWERING EQUIPMENT NOT DETERMINED

CLINTON, Ind., July 20.—Fourteen miners employed at the Vermilion Coal Company's mine, six miles west of Clinton were injured some of them seriously, when a runaway cage dropped them more than 100 feet to the bottom of the shaft early today. The men were removed from the shaft an hour after the accident and were taken to Terre Haute hospitals in ambulances. The mining company thus far has been unable to make public the names of the injured men.

Fourteen men the capacity of the cage were being lowered into the shaft to begin the day's work. When part way down the cage got out of control of the engineer and dropped the remainder of the distance to the bottom of the shaft. The officials of the company have not determined the cause of the accident although it was apparent from the first that the cage cable had not broken. Investigation immediately after the accident verified this and the cage later was used to bring the injured men to the top.

As soon as the accident was reported to this city all available physicians and ambulances were sent to the mine. A miner's first aid team also went to the shaft and assisted in giving temporary treatment to the injured miners as they were brought to the top.

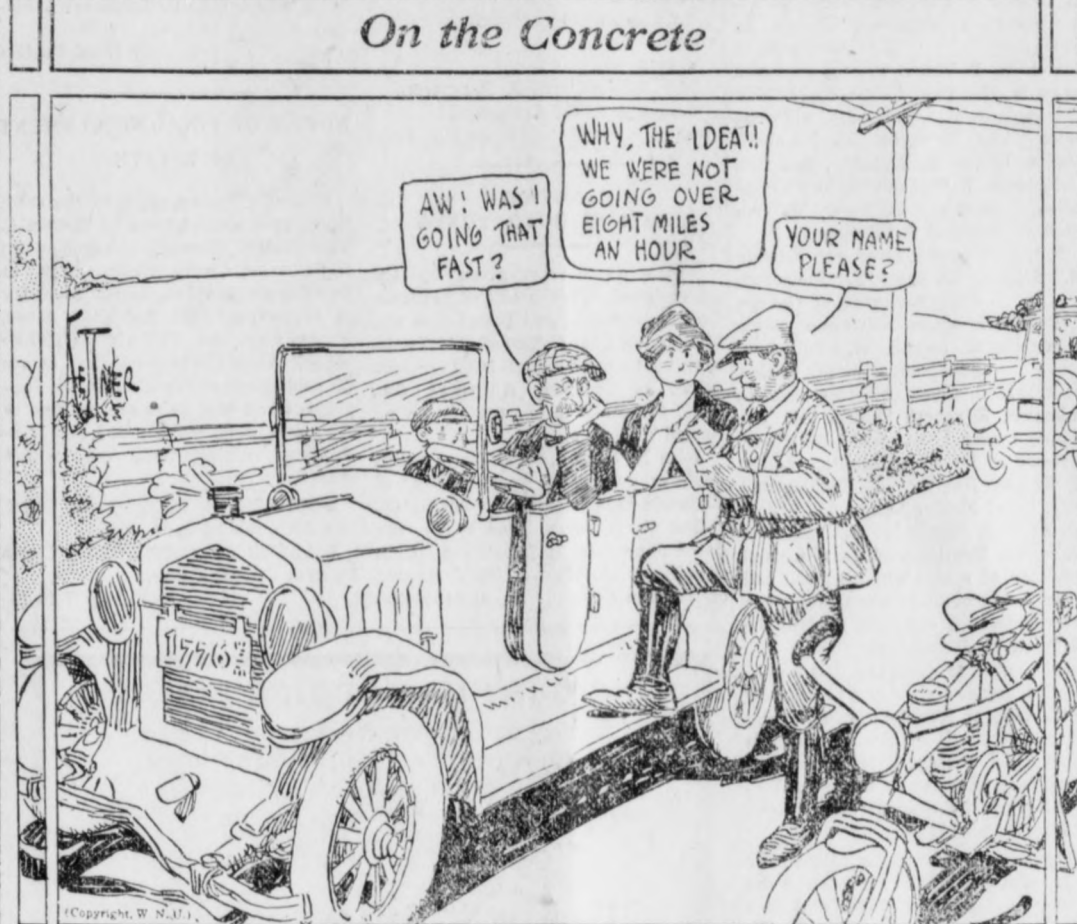

SMALL GAME TO BE PLENTIFUL THIS FALL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 20.—(SPECIAL)—Hunting of small wild game and birds in Indiana the coming season will be exceptionally good because there is an unusual number of quail and rabbits, according to George N. Mannfeld, superintendent of fisheries and game for the state conservation department.

In a report to the commission Mr. Mannfeld says that from every part of this state he receives the same reports relative to quail. They are exceedingly plentiful. Squirrels too are numerous and also rabbits.

Prevalence of wild life in the state to such an unusual extent can be attributed to a better law observance. Mr. Mannfeld declares. This he sums up in the statement that the public has a better understanding of why wild life must be protected in reproductive seasons and are co-operating with the department, and that the activity of the wardens make many would-be violators desist for fear of arrest.

Mrs. R. M. Smith of Rochester, N. Y., who has been visiting relatives in Indianapolis for the past several days returned to this city Thursday where she will spend the remainder of her visit with her sister, Mrs. Edgar Shamel and family and other relatives. Mrs. Smith formerly was Miss Ruth Lawton.

FOUR KILLED IN FREIGHT WRECK

ENGINE JUMPS TRACK AND CARS DUMP COAL LOADS ON CREW IN TRAGEDY AT CRAWFORDSVILLE

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., July 19.—Four members of a train crew of five were killed this afternoon at 5 o'clock when a Vandallia switch engine left the tracks about three miles north of this city and dragged three loaded coal gondola cars after it.

Harry Tracy, conductor of this city, J. C. Denby of Logansport, engineer; Morris J. Courtney, fireman and a new fireman, W. C. Lennon of Logansport, who was breaking in on the work, were the men losing their lives. J. P. York, brakeman, living in this city, was riding on the rear of the string of cars pulled by the switcher and escaped injury.

The engine turned completely around during its fall down the steep embankment and the coal cars dumped many tons of coal on top of it and the crew. The body of the engineer was found first by farmers who were working in nearby fields and who rushed rescue work as well as they were able without tools. The others were found shortly afterward, but the body of Courtney had not been reached at 9 o'clock. Two wrecking crews, one from Logansport and one from Terre Haute, were called and began the work about 8 o'clock of clearing the track and removing the wreck age.

The wreck was seen by several people and the brakeman Courtney, was seen to try to jump before the coal car on which he was riding left the track. The wreckage almost immediately caught fire and the local fire department was called to try to control the fire, as it was first hoped that possibly the three men in the cab might not be crushed. There was no water near the track and the breaking of steam pipes soon convinced the workers that there was no chance for the victims to have escaped. Ten children were orphaned and three widows were bereaved.

PROSECUTOR KILLS DEALER IN LIQUOR

LAFAYETTE, Ind., July 19.—Carl B. Stierle, 32 years old, was shot and instantly killed about three miles east of this city at 6:30 o'clock tonight by Morris R. Parks, prosecuting attorney. The shooting followed the springing of a liquor trap which had been set by Parks and John Lyle, the latter a colored officer from the office of U. S. Lesh, attorney general. Lyle came into town this morning and arranged for the liquor to be delivered to him. In the party which lay in wait for the run runners were Sheriff Joe Jackson and two deputies. As the bootlegger came to a stop at the appointed place, Parks sprang on the running board of the car. Stierle struck at the prosecuting attorney, breaking his glasses and according to Parks, drew a gun. Parks shot twice, one of the bullets piercing Stierle's heart, killing him instantly. Following the shooting, eight gallons of alcohol were found in Stierle's car. Stierle served a sentence at the state penal farm last year.

FIRE THREATENS CLOVERDALE SAW MILL THURSDAY

CONFLAGRATION WHICH PROBABLY STARTED FROM SPARK FROM SMOKESTACK, HAD SPREAD OVER ENTIRE ROOF BEFORE EXTINGUISHED

Fire, which probably started from a spark from the smoke stack, threatened the J. B. Rickey Saw Mill, at Cloverdale at near 9 o'clock Thursday night.

The fire on the roof started on that portion of the roof over the boiler room and spread rapidly, the entire roof of the building being on fire when the volunteer fire fighters arrived.

A large well, equipped with a gasoline force pump, at the mill, which originally had been used to supply water for the old Cloverdale school, gave ample water supply and after hard work the flames were checked.

The pump was equipped with a hose giving the fire fighters splendid equipment to fight the flames. A strong bucket brigade supported those using the hose and aided greatly in getting the fire checked.

The loss will amount to several hundred dollars.

LOCAL WOMAN AS WRITER OF VERSE BECOMES POPULAR

MRS. ETHEL ARNOLD TILDEN, WIFE OF PROF. F. C. TILDEN, OF DEPAUW UNIVERSITY HAS POEM "ENCHANTMENT" IN AUGUST NUMBER OF HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL—NOW WRITING UNDER OWN NAME

"Enchantment," a poem by Mrs. Ethel Arnold Tilden, of this city, illustrated by a reproduced painting by Charles C. Curran appears in the August number of the Hearst's International magazine.

Although Mrs. Tilden has written verse for several years, and has had her poems accepted by many of the leading magazines including Good Housekeeping, The Woman Citizen, The American Poetry Magazine, The Literary Digest, Ainsley's and many others they have never appeared under her own name until this summer.

A entire page, with illustrations by Charles C. Curran, is given by Hearst's International this month to "Enchantment."

The poem follows:
ENCHANTMENT
By Ethel Arnold Tilden
I have known one enchanted day—
A blue-gold day I threw away.
At dawn, I went down to the sea,
And stretched myself out lazily
Upon the sands and watched the sky
And silver sails go drifting by
The whole, sea-scented, long day through.
Not one thing useful did I do
Nor think one thought I can recall—
I was just glad, and that was all,
Blue sky, blue seas, gold sand, gold air,
Far sails outbound for anywhere
Swept through me with the rhythmic sweep
Of music magical as sleep.
Like a caress, sheer joy's still spell
Fell on me soft as blue dusk fell.

1 KILLED, 2 WOUNDED IN BOOTLEG BATTLE

NEW YORK, July 19.—One man was killed and two detectives were wounded tonight in a battle between police and bootleggers. The fight occurred in the heart of Harlem's "Black Belt." Frank Amico, said to have been a bootlegger was the man killed.

Letters received from Miss Metta McCoy, Miss Helen Browning, Miss Nellie Browning and Mrs. Lee Williams who are enjoying a two week's vacation at Lake Tippecanoe, state that they are having the "Time of their lives and that they are catching lots of fish."

W. A. Vaughan, J. S. Dowling and Frank Anderson, will go to Indianapolis Saturday to attend a convention of the Pennsylvania Railroad Veterans Employees Association. Employees who have been in the service of the railroad for more than 20 years are eligible to membership. Greencastle has five veterans, including the three already named, O. D. Swaim, freight agent who has been in the employ of the railroad 40 years and J. J. Harhold, operator who has been in the employ of the railroad 21 years. Mr. Swaim will be unable to attend the meeting because of illness and Mr. Harhold will be unable to attend the meeting because of business. Mr. Vaughan has been with the Pennsylvania railroad 27 years, Mr. Dowling 40 years and Mr. Anderson, 45 years.

THE DEER CREEK BRIDGE IS NEAR COMPLETION

LAYING OF PAVEMENT OVER 225 FOOT CONCRETE STRUCTURE WILL BEGIN IN FEW DAYS—MONON CROSSING AT PUTNAMVILLE ONLY PORTION OF NATIONAL ROAD WHICH WILL NOT BE COMPLETED BY AUGUST 15

The state highway commission has about completed building a three span—75-feet to the span—reinforced concrete arch bridge over Deer Creek east of Putnamville on the National road, and work will start in a few days in laying pavement across the structure. Present indications are that traffic may use the bridge and cut-off by August 15. John D. Williams, director of the commission says.

The National Road west of Indianapolis to the Illinois state line will be completely paved excepting for one and one-half miles, by Aug. 15, unless weather conditions interfere, according to Mr. Williams.

The only unpaved portions of the road after August 15 will be grade separations across the Monon railroad at Putnamville and Glenn Crossing over the Pennsylvania railroad. The work on these projects will begin soon, it was stated.

Opening of the Reelsville bridge and cut off means changing the National road back to where it was in 1875. In that year Deer Creek flooded its banks and washed out a bridge on the site of the new one. Putnam county commissioners changed the road over to pass through the town of Reelsville and across the old wooden structure at the base of a steep hill. When the highway commission started improving the National road the route was relocated back to the original right of way. The cut-off and new bridge eliminates two Pennsylvania railroad crossings and the dangerous Reelsville Hill, also shortens the route three quarters of a mile.

The old Reelsville route which will be abandoned about the middle of August was considered an extremely hazardous one due to the fact one negotiated a particularly steep hill and then turned sharply to enter the bridge. It has been the scene of many a serious accident.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Indianapolis Stock Yards Receipts—Hogs, 7,000; layovers, 4,800; cattle, 800; calves, 400 and sheep, 300.

Hog prices continued lower Friday due largely to the numbers of layovers from yesterday's market. Prices were mostly 10c lower and sales ranged from $7.00 to $7.65. The top was $7.70. Pigs were about steady from $7.00 down and sows slightly weaker, the heavy at $5.50 down and the lighter $6.75 down. At an early hour 8,500 had been sold, 4,500 by the outside buyers. The trading continued active and the prospects for a clearance were good.

Cattle were generally steady; calves were steady, selling from $12.00 down and sheep were 50 cents lower, the best lambs selling from $12.50 down.

Few Sleep Without Dreaming.

Some persons rarely remember their dreams. Often, upon awakening, a man will say that he has had an absolutely dreamless night. Going down the street a short time later, he will see a vase or some other object in a window, and that will remind him of an extraordinary dream that he had during the night he had believed to be dreamless.

Seized Their Opportunity.

Having watched five little girls playing together and purposely leaving out a sixth one, I inquired of one of them the cause of this treatment, to which she answered, "Well, you see, when Matilda plays with one or two of us she is so bossy that when we all get together we try to outboss her."

White House Etiquette.

It's White House etiquette for the President to be served first at dinner. Serving the President first is simply a relic of the old royal custom of dishing out the king's food first—one of the several "traditions" we copied from Britain when we set up national house-keeping.

A staid business man suddenly began reading Mother Goose.
In his library at night he would go over these old rhymes, seeming to weigh one as against another, then shaking his head and turning to the other parts of the book. Naturally his family became alarmed and sent for the family doctor. The medical man had to go about broaching the subject with fine diplomacy, of course, but it had to be done and he did it. He explained to the business man that the latter's wife was becoming uneasy. "Great snakes!" exclaimed the merchant when he had grasped the idea. "What does a woman know about business? I'm just trying to find a good name for a new style in children's rompers."

Reward Finest Building.

Old London is setting an example to the world in striving for beauty. The Royal Institute of British Architects has granted a bronze medal every year for the finest street frontage built within four miles of Charing Cross. It was won this year by W. HAVE YOU ROOMS TO RENT?

The University authorities desire to co-operate with the people of Greencastle in taking care of the students who are coming to college in the Fall. People who desire to rent rooms to young men students of DePauw University should communicate with W. Henry McLean, the Assistant to the President. The citizens are requested to state in writing their full name and address, telephone number, number of rooms, for rent, single or double, kind of accommodations (house modern or not), the price per month of the room for one young man; price per month for two young men in one room, and any other information which may indicate the desirability of the rooms.

These accommodations should be simple and comfortable. The price should be reasonable, as many students are working their way through college. It is well known that the charge made by the University in Men's Halls is $30.00 for 18 weeks. This amounts to less than $7.00 per month for each young man. It is not expected that rooms in town can be secured at this low rate. Greencastle people have been very hospitable to the students of DePauw. There are many homes in Greencastle who are desirous of keeping young men students. The college desires to list all rooming houses where the young men may stay and to be of the greatest possible service to our townspeople.

Persons in Greencastle desiring to rent rooms to men students will communicate with W. Henry McLean, Assistant to the President stating full information.

A mother traveling with her three children, the oldest five years old, kept their faces clean without getting out of her seat by carrying a new folding rubber tobacco pouch with a dampened wash rag in it. The children journeyed all the way, looking rosy and clean, and got off the train at grandma's as fresh-looking as when they started from home.

Rivers Under London.

There are several small rivers under modern London. The Enna, the main part of which now is inclosed in a sewer, formerly flowed through south London from Brixton Hill, emptying itself in the Thames. It is on record that Queen Elizabeth once rowed up this little river when she visited Sir Walter Raleigh at Brixton.

Promoting the General Welfare

1.—Let railroad rates and railroad laws alone for the present. Give the railroads a chance to get on their feet financially before further tightening up on their earnings. Give the Transportation Act of 1920 a more adequate test before determining what revisions—if any—it requires.

2.—Get solidly back of the railroads in carrying out their adequate transportation program of 1923—recognizing the fact that the continued prosperity of the country is dependent upon the successful carrying out of that program.

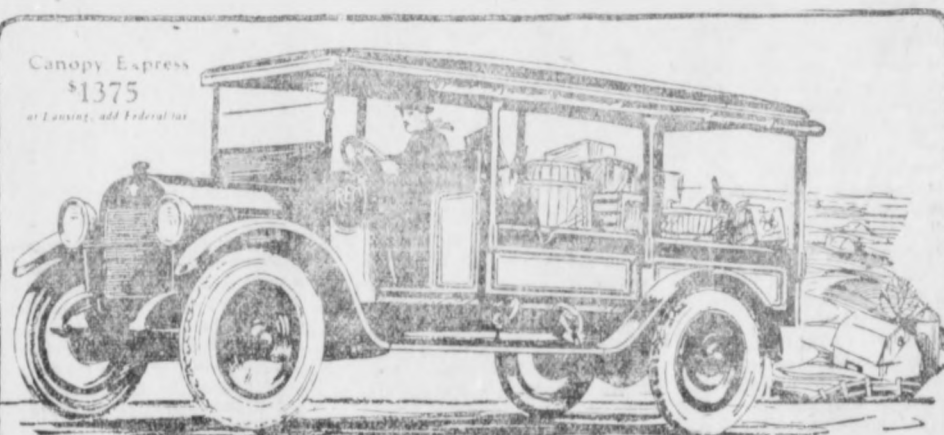

3.—Give every possible encouragement to the loyal and earnest working forces of the railroads so that they may cooperate in the best and most enthusiastic spirit with the management.

The agricultural, industrial and commercial interests of the country in promoting the general welfare have been invited to take an active part in making this platform effective. With the support of the public it is confidently believed that our railroads, their managers and employees, will be able splendidly and efficiently to perform the vitally important task which has been set for them to do.

SPEED WAGON

The experience of nineteen successful years is embodied in the Mighty Speed Wagon as it stands today.

With a variable capacity up to 2500 pounds, it is delivering the goods quicker and cheaper in nearly 300 lines of business, and is fitted to ninety-five per cent of all commercial carrying.

Equipped with the famous Reo engine, super-powerful; the Reo clutch with its thirteen friction facings; the Reo transmission with its large, silently operating gears; rugged rear axle, spiral beveled.

Major power units are cradled in an inner-frame suspended within the main frame, thus minimizing road shocks and insuring softer driving action.

Twelve standard body styles render the Speed Wagon adaptable to practically every line of business.

TO TEST MENACE OF NEW ICE AGE

MacMillan Expedition Will Study
Recent Movements of Glaciers in Greenland.

New York.—Is another ice age coming? Are the scenes of the latter Pleistocene age—the geologic period which immediately preceded our own—to be repeated? And, if so, what will it mean to the inhabitants of the earth?

In an effort to determine whether there is any likelihood of such a cataclysmic occurrence the MacMillan expedition recently left for Greenland to study the recent movements of glaciers on that island continent. The great ice age ended, according to scientists, about 25,000 years ago, but the ice has left its footprints, by which its advances and retreats and movements may be traced.

During the ice age, or the Glacial period, there was a marked lowering of temperature over the whole earth, and 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 square miles of the globe's surface became entirely covered with ice. Half the region thus covered lay in North America; more than half the remainder lay in Europe. But far away, even to the tropical forests of India and the mountains of Asia, glaciation occurred where there had been no ice previous to the ice age. On mountains which now bear burdens of conglutinal snow and ice the snow line descended 5,000 feet lower than it is at present.

Human Beings Succumbed.

Imagine great sheets of ice and hard-packed snow creeping ever so slowly but surely over the temperate areas of Europe and America, and imparting to them an Arctic cold to which many of those early human beings, who in their savagery were little better than beasts, succumbed. These mighty layers of ice, miles and miles in thickness, spread over rivers and mountains and plains, filling up the valleys and the lakes and the seas. In Europe the ice moved forth from the Scandinavian highlands and buried the lowlands of Belgium, Russia, Denmark, Germany and Holland; and then, crossing the North sea, touched the shores of Britain. Besides these great continental ice sheets, large individual glaciers formed in the valleys of the Alps and spread out in all directions. Separate glaciers joined on the plains of France and Italy and in the Rhine and Danube valleys.

Four times the enormous sheets of ice advanced and covered the land. Four times they retreated after uncounted centuries, each time leaving a terminal moraine of boulders, earth and other debris which serves as an indication of the route of the ice on its advance southward. The second of these four glacial advances brought the ice farther south. In North America the terminal moraine of the ice can still be observed, and followed, in a roughly correct line, over Long Island through the town of Jamaica, as far south as Perth Amboy, N. J. The line then runs in a northwesterly direction through a point where the town of Morristown is now located. The smooth, low plains of the upper Mississippi valley were covered with ice, while the Ohio and Missouri rivers owe their beginning to the glacial advances of the ice age.

Leaves Its Mark.

Not only by the terminal moraines, which indicate the extent of the various ice advances, can the route of glaciation be read. The passage of ice over the hard, rocky floor of the earth leaves a peculiar kind of marking. This erosion, due to the work of glaciers and ice sheets, is of a smooth, rounded nature imparted to the rocks which contrasts decidedly with the pinnacled, irregular surfaces which are the work of ordinary weathering. The whole of the enormous island of Greenland is covered with an ice cap or ice sheet which, pressing down under the weight of accumulated snow of centuries, imparts a gradual movement to the various glaciers along its edges.

There is great doubt in the minds of many scientists as to what the findings of the MacMillan expedition's examination will indicate.

Electric Signals for Nursery in Church

The First Christian church of Pine Bluff, Ark., has installed a nursery which has an electric signal system by which mothers, seated in the main auditorium, may keep in touch with their babies.

A cabinet containing numbers, behind each of which is an electric light, is installed in the auditorium, and when a mother sees her particular number flash she knows she is needed in the nursery.

IF WORLD WERE LEVELED

Of Course Presuming the Impossible,
This Earth Would Be One Great Undrivable Wet.

If all the hills on the earth were used to fill all the valleys we should have a world as smooth as a billiard ball, completely covered with an ocean 8,700 feet deep. That depth is called the "mean sphere level." The Atlantic ocean has an average depth that differs little from that level, for, compared with the other great oceans, it has an unusually large area of comparatively shallow water. First comes the shelflike "continental slopes"; then follows, at much lower level, a vast plain of a uniform, dull-grayish-buff color, flat and featureless as the desert, unmarked except by an occasional rock or wreck, or a recently laid cable. This plain continues with hardly a break until it reaches the great midatlantic ridge that extends from Iceland as far south as 53 degrees south latitude and that roughly bisects the ocean. The ridge runs almost parallel with the eastern coast of Europe and Africa. Occasionally the ridge rises above the surface. The Azores, St. Paul's rocks, Ascension island, the Island of Tristan da Cunha and the Gough islands are all parts of it.—Christian Science Monitor.

LONG A PRIVILEGED CLASS

Prerogatives of Spanish Grandees Placed Them Almost on an Equality With Royalty.

The name Spanish grandees is given to the higher nobility of Spain—dating from the Thirteenth century—who at one time enjoyed almost royal privileges. They held their honors by inheritance, were exempt from taxation, and could leave the kingdom, and even enter the service of a foreign prince at war with Spain, without incurring the penalties of treason. In addition they had the right to remain covered in the presence of the sovereign and could not be summoned before any civil or criminal tribunal without a special warrant from the king. In national assemblies the grandees took precedence of the titled nobility. Ferdinand and Isabella greatly curtailed these peculiar privileges, and Charles V limited their number of families to 16 and reduced them to a dependent condition. Their dignities and prerogatives were totally abolished by Joseph Bonaparte, but these were partly restored by Ferdinand VII on his accession to the throne.

Remarkable Advancement.

From a $900 a year clerkship to the position of first deputy controller of the currency is the career of Willis J. Fowler, who has just been appointed to the latter position by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Mellon. Mr. Fowler entered the government service in 1886 and has since remained in the Treasury department in various capacities. He has had several promotions, both as to position and salary, but his latest advancement is said to be due not to politics but to his long and honorable record of service.—New York Herald.

Behind the Scenes.

Telephone Operator—Sorry, sir, Mr. McConnell is at an important conference and is likely to be away all afternoon.

Customer—Can you tell me when he will be back?
Telephone Operator (to office boy)—When is the baseball game over, Johnny? Five o'clock? (over the phone.) No, I don't think he will be back before half-past five. This is an important conference, I'll tell him you called.—Cohoes Sentinel.

Unfavorable Weather.

Out on the West side a youngster had worn the same gingham dress to school for several weeks without laundering. The teacher, knowing that some change must be effected in its condition, said to her: "My dear, your dress is very soiled. Can't you get your mother to wash it?"
The child returned: "I don't know. You see ma hasn't washed for a month now. 'Cause it hasn't been good drying weather."—Indianapolis News.

Not a Father—Has Two Children.

Two little Irish boys met an Episcopalian clergyman on the street. Noticing the clerical collar, one boy doffed his cap and said:
"Good morning, father."
The other boy grasped his companion's shoulder.
"Whist! He's not a father. He's married and has two children."—Everybody's Magazine.

Not Quite Rid of Her.

One day a friend came to our house who was an awful talker. A while later I heard the door slam, and rushed in, saying, "I know you're glad to get rid of her." To my embarrassment I found that she was still there and was talking to my brother, who was the one who came in when I thought it was her going out.—Exchange.

HUMMING BIRD A MYSTERY

How He Comes and Whence, in the Tropics, No Human Being Really Knows.

Just how he comes, except that he comes in the air, no human knows. He is almost unthinkably swift; your eye can hardly follow him at close range in a strong light. He is due about now, from the tropics, traveling with stop-over privileges to be sure—but the wonder is that he should come at all he is so frail, says Collier's, or should want to when most of his tribe live their lives down there, where gorgeousness belongs. His powers of flight makes those of all other warm-blooded things seem clumsy. The ancient who marveled at the way of an eagle in the air had never seen him; he was a helicopter before man could sail a boat. He can buffet himself at a wall; stop dead just short of it, and dangle at ease from nothing, probing a flower, his miniature wings a blur you cannot see. He was hatched from an egg as lovely as a pearl and smaller than a good-sized pea. His body, skinned, would be the size of the end of your little finger. But no bird of prey or squirrel or cat will tarry near his nest, a motor-driven needle that darts and dodges, being too rich for their blood. If you had half his energy and spirit in proportion, you would be king of the world. And he will perch and preen himself sedately as a dove, and his throat shames rubies, and his back dims shining brass.

WISDOM IN SHORT CHUNKS

Author Has Said Much Worth
Consideration in a Few Simple Sentences.

"It's a waste of time trying to 'discover' yourself. And why bother? Somebody is sure to find you out sooner or later and give you the desired information."

"Although there are plenty of people with more money than they know what to do with, they are all absurdly independent when offered assistance by kind persons with the requisite knowledge."

"When a man is ill, he does not trouble to shave for the doctor's visit unless he has a pretty nurse. But a woman under similar circumstances will give the same nurse $10 in order to present a good appearance."

"In childhood I was severely spanked whenever I told a lie. As an adult I have been more often cut for speaking the truth than for any other breach of good manners."—From the "Relations of Harlequin," by Stoni Semper.

Her Favorite Stick.

Bluebelle's parents both played golf assiduously and her dad was always asserting that the girl ought to cut out some of her frivolity and take up the more serious things of life, golf preferred. So after a great deal of effort, he got her out on the links one day. They came home in due time, Bluebelle blooming, dad looking disgruntled. Mother was much interested in learning about the game.
"Did Bluebelle go all the way around?" she asked.
"She did," granted father.
"And what stick did the dear girl employ the most?"
"Her lipstick, as usual."

Reclaimed Italian Marshes.

Seven tons of rice per hectare is the record average yield from what was until a short time ago worthless, unhealthful marsh lands just south of Rome. Wheat, barley, beets, alfalfa, tomatoes and flax are grown on land reclaimed by filling and drainage, and the former marsh lands support a tomato cannery, where 120 tons of tomatoes are concentrated every day. American Consul Leon Dominian, Rome, informs the Department of Commerce. Over six thousand acres of land have already been brought into usefulness.

Growing Weary.

"Looky here!" sternly chided Constable Slackpitter of Petunia. "I've been shattering you for three, four days now, and hain't found out a single thing against you."

"Yes," replied the stranger. "I have observed you doing so."

"Well—got-ram it—do something pretty quick, or hanged if I don't arrest you, anyhow! I'm getting tired of your foolishness."—Kansas City Star.

Telephoning by Light.

Speech can now be efficiently transmitted by means of light over a distance of several miles, said Prof. A. O. Rankine at the Royal Institute in London. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, was also the inventor of the photophone, by which he was able to transmit speech by light over a maximum distance of 700 feet. The substance used is selenium, but unfortunately it cannot be relied upon to do the same thing every day. Control, however, is steadily being secured.

Injury Makes Hair Grow.

William Hall of Lewiston, Pa., who is over eighty years old, has been bald for many years. A short time ago both his legs were fractured in an auto accident. While he was recovering from his injuries he grew a full head of hair.—New York World.

Often the Way.

"Everybody tries to kiss that girl."
"She doesn't seem so attractive why?"
"She won't let you."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WOULD SHUT DOWN GAS WORKS

"My stomach has been so filled with gas for the last three years that I felt I could pretty nearly supply our town. I also had frequent pains in my right side in the region of the appendix. Doctors didn't help much. One day my neighbors told me about what Mayr's Wonderful Remedy had done for him and I got a bottle of our druggist. I can say that it will do all and more than you claim for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale by leading druggists everywhere.

The Well-Managed Home

THE manager of a household is the purchasing agent for a large proportion of the family needs. In order to do a good job she must know what, when and where to buy. She must study goods and the concerns which make goods and have them to sell. She must put her home on a business basis and run it on principles in order to make the most of the family income.

Information is the only basis for intelligent purchasing. And the right way to get the greatest amount of necessary information is to read the advertisements.

Advertisements tell you what is new and good in merchandise. They reveal improvements and inventions that make your home life easier, more comfortable and more convenient. They give you information about a thousand and one things that are useful and interesting.

Every manager of a household—every member of the household who shares the responsibility for the family's welfare—should make a practice of reading the advertisements. They are daily lessons in economy.

Read the advertisements in order to buy wisely
